November 12, 2026

ColoradoBiz Highlights Gould & Ratner's Culture and Commitment to Its People

ColoradoBiz recently featured Gould & Ratner in an article highlighting the firm's collaborative culture, commitment to professional development, and emphasis on creating an environment where employees can build rewarding, long-term careers.

The article explores how the firm's approach to leadership fosters meaningful connections across its Chicago and Denver offices, giving employees opportunities to contribute ideas, take on new responsibilities, and help shape the firm's future.

It also highlights Gould & Ratner's commitment to mentorship and career advancement, including employees who have grown from junior positions into senior leadership roles, as well as the firm's emphasis on community involvement through pro bono work, volunteer initiatives, and charitable activities.

Together, these efforts reflect Gould & Ratner's ongoing investment in its people and the culture that makes the firm one of the best places to work.

Read the full article in ColoradoBiz.